S02 / CURRENCY AND SCHEDULES

Prepare and post a recurring journal

Bookkeeping / Upcoming / Recurring

Use a recurring plan for a repeatable event whose terms, accounts and dates can be checked at each occurrence.

01 Set up the plan

Prepare the journal in Post Entry. Use Save as for the recurring transaction, enter the schedule and reminder, and inspect its accounts, currency, memo and dates.

02 Review when due

Open the next occurrence in Upcoming. Confirm that the service, obligation or payment actually occurred and that the period is open. Replace any outdated amount, account or rate through the applicable plan workflow.

03 Post and trace

Use the explicit posting control, wait for the receipt and retain the REC journal number. If interrupted, reopen that occurrence and confirm its status or linked journal before trying again.

Rent example

A monthly service billed in arrears may use a recurring expense/payable entry. Rent paid in advance uses the prepaid plan so every release can be checked against the remaining asset.

Before you finish

Confirm the occurrence appears once in Active Journal and the next due date is correct. A reminder is a prompt for review.
